Emissions from the consultation were minimal. All consultation events were planned in strategic areas where people could access via foot, public transport or by car. Events were also planned to coincide with other events at the venue, to capture footfall as people arrived or departed.

Documentation was kept to a minimum to avoid waste and the consultation was promoted online in the first instance to avoid the use of paper where possible.

No further consultation events will be taking place following the publication of the Cabinet report.

Will the proposal affect Council services' resilience to climate change, or the capacity of people living in the Borough to adapt to climate change?

This report provides an update on previous consultation activities and provides recommendations relating to its outcome in the form of changes to the fees for the delivery of this service. This financial change is unlikely to have any significant carbon emissions associated. The impacts of the consultation are summarised in the above section.
