

PART A - Initial Equality Screening Assessment

As a public authority we need to ensure that all our strategies, policies, service and functions, both current and proposed have given proper consideration to equality and diversity.

A screening process can help judge relevance and provide a record of both the process and decision. Screening should be a short, sharp exercise that determines relevance for all new and revised strategies, policies, services and functions.

Completed at the earliest opportunity it will help to determine:

- the relevance of proposals and decisions to equality and diversity
- whether or not equality and diversity is being/has already been considered, and
- whether or not it is necessary to carry out an Equality Analysis (Part B).

Further information is available in the Equality Screening and Analysis Guidance – see page 9.

2. Please provide a brief description of what you are screening
The Social Housing (Regulation) Act regulations came into force on April 1 st , 2024. The new regulations and inspection regime require social housing landlords to deliver in line with the four consumer standards relating to Quality and Safety, Transparency Influence and Accountability, Neighbourhood and Community, and Tenancy. Social housing is governed by a range of legislation and these new consumer standards build upon the existing legislative requirements. This report is an update on the work taking place across Housing to make sure we meet the regulations. The new regulations require social housing providers to report a range of performance measures on an annual basis. This report provides Cabinet with an update on the ongoing work to ensure Housing services comply with the revised regulatory framework, including the new consumer standards, and presents the latest Tenant Satisfaction Measures results for noting.

3. Relevance to equality and diversity

The consumer standards are focussed on the quality of delivery for tenants and there is an expectation that landlords will know their tenants and will adapt delivery to meet particular needs, including in response to those with protected characteristics. In effect, being inclusive and respecting and responding to diversity and aiming for equality of access are core tenets of the new regulations. The new regulatory framework for social housing will include inspections so landlords will be judged on how well they are meeting these requirements.

The consumer standards that came into force from April 1st, 2024, had a period of public consultation before being finalised. The final Equality Impact Assessment was published alongside the finalised consumer standards on February 29th, 2024, and can be found at:

The Government's Equality Impact Assessment has been considered when reviewing the Tenant Satisfaction Measures to make sure we are compliant with the new regulations. As the government's assessment states, equality considerations were taken into account throughout the development of the new consumer standards. The work being done by the Housing service puts all groups of tenants at the heart of what we do but understanding that we need to evidence that services are accessible to and offered in ways that meet the needs of those with protected characteristics.

This 6-monthly update is intended to provide cabinet with the latest position on the Tenant Satisfaction Measures and outline the steps being taken to improve any measures that are on a downward trend.

If you have answered no to all the questions above please complete sections 5 and 6.

If you have answered yes to any of the above please complete section 4.

4. Considering the impact on equality and diversity

If you have not already done so, the impact on equality and diversity should be considered within your proposals before decisions are made.

Considering equality and diversity will help to eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation and take active steps to create a discrimination free society by meeting a group or individual's needs and encouraging participation.
